Each of the three infantry Kommandos and the artillery Kommando had its own communications platoon. The platoon of the artillery Kommando was integrated into the headquarters platoon. The communications platoons were issued signal equipment from the 2d Sonderabteilung for the duration of training and training operations. Radio messages remained in clear text during training operations. It was said that radio messages would be coded once the 2d Sonderabteilung had established a list of cover names and a code chart.
